Teleflex Announces Executive Appointments

September 17, 2008

LIMERICK, Pa.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Sept. 17, 2008--Teleflex Incorporated (NYSE:TFX) today announced the appointment of two of its executives to new roles in the company's Medical Segment, reporting to Ernest Waaser, President, Teleflex Medical.

Vince Northfield has been named Executive Vice President for Global Operations, Teleflex Medical. In this newly created role, he will lead the Segment's manufacturing operations, as well as sourcing, demand planning and distribution. Mr. Northfield had been President of Teleflex Commercial, the company's industrial segment. He joined Teleflex in 2001 and has held several executive management positions including leadership of the company's automotive and marine businesses and the leadership of Teleflex's global strategic development and operational effectiveness programs. The Commercial Group businesses will now report directly to Jeffrey P. Black, Teleflex Chairman and Chief Executive Officer.

Matthew Jennings has been named President, Teleflex Medical North America. Mr. Jennings will lead the critical care and surgical products business, the largest Medical Segment business unit. He had previously been Senior Vice President, Corporate Development. Mr. Jennings joined Teleflex Medical in 2004 as President of the surgical products business in North America. He has been a significant contributor to the North American business as a leader of strategic planning and information systems initiatives.
