"We are proud of our manufacturing heritage in the United States, and we welcome this recognition from the Made in the USA Foundation," said Boris Elisman, president and chief executive officer of ACCO Brands. "We have been making paper clips continuously in the U.S. for more than one hundred years. Currently, we manufacture more than five billion paper clips each year at our plant in Pleasant Prairie, Wisconsin. We have worked hard to get our US operations to become more productive and believe there are further opportunities to have products manufactured in the US."

ACCO Brands manufactures a variety of office and school products in several locations across the United States. In addition to paper clips, the company manufactures stapling cartridges, filing products, three-ring binders, laminating supplies and equipment, binding supplies and equipment, notebooks, paper tablets, envelopes, calendars and planners, whiteboards and bulletin boards, and a number of other products in the U.S.

The company's U.S. manufacturing facilities are based in Ontario, California; Booneville, Mississippi; Ogdensburg and Sidney, New York; Alexandria, Pennsylvania; and Pleasant Prairie, Wisconsin.
