All associates must take all reasonable steps to prevent accidents and never sacrifice safety for expedience. Our goal is to eliminate or minimize hazards that can cause accidents. It is company policy that all associates be given a copy of the policies manual and be familiar with its contents.

This policy will be reviewed annually. (Current revision: February 2019)

Together we can achieve a safe and happy work environment.

Occupational Health and Safety in Workplaces

Duties of Workers

Occupational Health and Safety and You
One of your most important responsibilities is to protect your health and safety as well as that of your co-workers. This booklet will discuss some of your duties under the Act and help you to make your workplace safer and healthier.

What the law requires
Workplaces under the jurisdiction are governed by the Act. The Act places duties on owners, employers, workers, suppliers, the self-employed and contractors, to establish and maintain safe and healthy working conditions.

Duties of Your Employer
Your employer is responsible for providing you with safe and healthy working conditions. This includes a duty to protect you from violence, discrimination and harassment. You must cooperate with your employer in making your workplace safe and healthy.

Your Responsibilities
You must also comply with the Act. You have responsibilities to:
- protect your own health and safety and that of your co-workers;
- not initiate or participate in the harassment of another worker; and
- co-operate with your supervisor and anyone else with duties under the Act.

Your Rights
The Act gives your three rights:
- the right to know the hazards at work and how to control them;
- the right to participate in Occupational Health and Safety; and
- the right to refuse work which you believe to be unusually dangerous.
You may not be punished for using these rights. An employer can be required to legally justify any action taken against a worker who is active in health and safety.

Your Right to Know
The Act requires your employer to provide you with all the information you need to control the hazards you face at work. If you are inexperienced, you must receive an orientation which includes:
- What to do in a fire or other emergency;
- First aid facilities;
- Prohibited or restricted areas;
- Workplace hazards; and
- Any other information you should know.

You must also be supervised by a competent supervisor.

Your Right to Participate
You have the right to become involved in Occupational Health and Safety. The Act encourages employers and workers to work together to maintain a healthy and safe workplace.

Safety Committee Has Duty To:
- Regularly inspect the workplace;
- Assist with accident investigations;
- Deal with the Health and Safety concerns of associates;
- Investigate refusals to work;

Your Right to Refuse
You have the right to refuse to do work which you believe is unusually dangerous. The unusual danger may be to you or to anyone else. An unusual danger could include such things as:
- a danger which is not normal for your occupation or the job;
- a danger under which you would not normally carry out your job; and/or
- a situation for which you are not properly trained, equipped or experienced.

To exercise this right, use the following guidelines:
1. Once you believe that the work you have been asked to do is unusually dangerous, you should inform your supervisor.
2. Make sure that the supervisor understands that you are refusing to do the disputed job for health and safety reasons.
3. Work with the supervisor to attempt to resolve the problem.

If the problem cannot be resolved by the supervisor to your satisfaction, you may contact the Safety Officer. You also have the right to contact Human Resources at any time.

Do not leave the site without the permission of your employer.
Your supervisor should contact the Safety Officer and ask them to investigate. They will try to resolve the matter. If they cannot resolve the matter to your satisfaction, they will convene the Occupation Health and Safety Committee for an emergency meeting.

The committee will investigate and prepare a report on the refusal.

You have the right to continue to refuse until:
- measures have been taken to satisfy you that the job is now safe to perform; or
- Your Occupation Health and Safety Committee has investigated and ruled against your refusal.
If you disagree with the decision of the Committee, you may appeal to Human Resources

An employer cannot assign another worker to do the disputed job unless the replacement worker is advised in writing:
- of the refusal and the reasons for it;
- of the reasons why the employer believes that the replacement worker can do the disputed job safely;
- that the replacement worker also has the right to refuse; and
- of the steps to follow when exercising this right.
